We are working and thankful to have the work - Trust that the Bowles family did well enough to enjoy a happy retirement in Basalt. Now let's move forward so the next generation has the same chance. I am completely aware of my reputation as a "friend" of developers and a pro growth guy - and will continue in that vein. I believe my track record on things like the RMP, post office, library, Midland Bridge and many other significant contributions fairly outweigh that reputation. Let's cut through the rhetoric.

Pam, not sure why Pauline doesn't send to entire council, but she said share.

Well, the only thing we know for sure, Rick Stevens has work!
How can this little town be hurting when there is not a place to park on Main Street day in and day out? Went to Two River cafe for breakfast Monday,
the place was full. The Aspen papers have been editorializing about how they are sorry to see all the traffic plus all the people. Even Paul Anderson just wrote an article about too many people in urban areas become mean! And now there are those who want to stack this area with as many people as possible. Have we forgotten to think about the overall picture as to where all these people will work plus recreate. As an aside, Art had a conversation with Frank Travena. He told Art he would be willing to sell and planned to have a conservation in a couple weeks with a party. He thought we needed to vote on a park. I sure hate to think we taxpayers will be providing front lawns to people living in those condos, free maintenance included! Oh, and shut off the music! It is disturbing the paying guest! Because no one did any planning before they built bus parking along a busy highway , I'm going to have to spend my final years trying to run across the highway! But my goodness, the bikers have a fancy bridge up the road and Ace Lane jumped with joy when he didn't even have approval for his development. And now CDOT has money for a traffic circle at El Jebel. I'm frustrated, we have written letters and they have been chucked in the trash. The only thing that is on the agenda now is making sure the developer will be able to make a profit! Really! Pauline.
